

During the COVID-19 pandemic, Congress passed legislation to ensure people would have access to health coverage and other benefits while the country was in a state of public health emergency (PHE). This gave people on Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) Continuous coverage even if their eligibility changed.

DID YOU KNOW?

On March 31, 2023 continuous coverage will end and people who have had Medicaid coverage will go through state-run processes to redetermine whether or not they're eligible for Medicaid. This process is referred to as "Medicaid Unwinding."

As states continue reviewing Medicaid members' eligibility, it's expected that 15 million people will lose their Medicaid coverage.

Some of these individuals will qualify for employer sponsored health plans, but around 2.7 million will turn to the ACA Marketplace.

Any person on Medicaid should make sure they can access their personal Medicaid account ahead of time and check their status with the state.

Consumers deemed ineligible for Medicaid can enroll in ACA Marketplace coverage during a Special Enrollment Period (SEP) allowing 60 days before and after their Medicaid coverage ends to choose a plan.
